STREET CAR AND OMNIBUS ROUTES.

STREET CARS.

Visitors to the city will find street-car travel ample for nearly all their needs in the locomotion line. Cars run to almost every part of the city, at intervals of from two to twelve minutes and one hour, according to destination. The fare to all points inside the city limits is uniformly five cents, and that to points with which the "dummy" connects ten cents extra.

The South Division.—All the South Side cars start at the intersection of State and Lake streets, and run as follows:

Via State street to Thirty-third street, connecting with Union Stock Yard cars.

Via State and Twenty-second streets and Cottage Grove avenue to Thirty-ninth street; also via same route to Twenty-fifth street. The "through cars" connect at Thirty-ninth street with Hyde Park dummy.

Via State and Eighteenth streets and Indiana avenue to Thirty-first street.

Via State street and Archer avenue to South branch Chicago river.

The West Division.—Cars leave the intersection of State and Lake streets for the West Side as follows:

Via Madison street to the limits.

Via Madison and Halsted streets and Blue Island avenue to Sixteenth street.

Cars leave the corner of Randolph and State streets as follows:

Via Randolph and Lake streets to the limits.

Via Randolph and Milwaukee avenue to Bloomingdale street.

Via Randolph, Clinton and Jefferson streets to Sixteenth street.

Via Randolph street, Fifth avenue and Van Buren street to Wood street.

The North Division—Cars leave Clark street bridge for Sedgwick street, Clybourne avenue and Larrabee street, Chicago avenue, Lincoln Park, Fullerton avenue and Lincoln avenue. Also every hour to connect with the dummy at Diversey avenue, running to Graceland Cemetery.

West and South Divisions.—In addition to the above, a line of cars runs through from Wood street on the West Side to Twenty-second street on the South Side, via Madison and State streets. These cars run about every five minutes.

OMNIBUSES.

In the South Division two lines of 'buses start from Twenty-second street and go to Union Park, via Wabash avenue and Madison street. Another line runs from the corner of State and Madison street, via Wabash avenue, to Twenty-ninth street, and a fourth from Thirty-first street, via Prairie avenue and Madison street, to Union Park. This last-named line runs only in the morning and evening, to accommodate business men.

In the West Division, besides the 'buses from the South Side, lines run on Milwaukee avenue, Blue Island avenue, Halsted street and Canal street, and to and from the various depots.

On the North Side is only one line, which runs between Lincoln Park and the corner of Madison and Clark streets.

PUBLIC PARKS.

A magnificent system of parks and boulevards is being provided in and around Chicago. When finished, they will be unexcelled in the world for extent and general beauty. At present the work is being carried out, and they present an unfinished condition. The Parks and routes to them are as follows:

Lincoln Park—On North Clark street and the lake. Accessible by cars on North Clark street.

Humboldt Park—In the northwestern part of the city, on California avenue, between West Division street and West North avenue. Accessible via Milwaukee avenue.

Central Park—In the western part of the city, on Central Park avenue, between Kinzie and Harrison streets. Accessible by Madison and Randolph streets.

Douglas Park—Southwest, on California avenue, between Twelfth and Nineteenth streets. Accessible by way of Twelfth street.

South Park—On the lake, south of the village of Hyde Park. Accessible by way of Cottage Grove avenue.

These Parks are connected by a system of splendid boulevards, from 300 to 400 feet in width.

Besides the above system, Chicago has other parks, viz.: Union Park, on West Lake and West Madison streets; Jefferson Park, between Loomis and Throop and West Monroe and West Adams streets; Ellis Park, on Vincennes avenue, south of Douglas place, and the Lake Park—the site of the Inter-State Exhibition building, on the lake front and Michigan avenue, between Randolph and Twelfth streets.

Union and Jefferson Parks can be reached by Madison and Randolph street cars, Ellis Park by Cottage Grove avenue cars, while the Lake Park is within easy walking distance of the old Court House.
